

Call for Papers: Award in Economics Finance and Development 2023

Professionals and students from different educational levels, both national and foreign, are encouraged to participate. Individual authors or co-authors (maximum four), including the winners of previous editions of the call, except the winners of 2022, can participate. Neither CBN's active servants, nor CBN's public servants in a situation of suspension, nor members of the jury can participate.

The studies must be written in Spanish or English, in topics about Nicaragua or including the country as part of the analysis. Research may address the areas of economics, finance, and socioeconomic issues that contributes to understand and explain the causes, the consequences, and the drivers of change for the development of Nicaragua.

Studies submitted to previous editions of the contest will not be accepted. Abstracts of B.Sc. thesis, master thesis, and doctorate thesis written in the last five years will be accepted. Thesis abstracts should quote in both text and references the original document. Studies should be unpublished. They cannot be in process of being published or in process of review in another competition.

The document format should be single line spacing, font Times New Roman 12, maximum length of 30 pages, including an abstract of 150 words. A pseudonym should be included in the cover page to replace the name of author or co-authors. Papers without a pseudonym or with any other reference suggesting the identity of the author will be disqualified. Likewise, studies containing plagiarism will be subjected to immediate disqualification.

To participate in this contest, the necessary information will be requested in a digital registration form. Studies in digital PDF format, as well as replication commands and databases used, must be attached. No physical documents or in any other way than through the above-mentioned website will be accepted.

Participation in this contest is free of charge. The CBN does not accept payments for registration or disbursements of any kind. The CBN does not assume costs or reimbursements for carrying out the research and presenting the results.

Winner of the first prize will get

C$140,000.00

(One-hundred and forty thousand Córdobas) plus a certificate of recognition.

Winner of the second prize will get

C$120,000.00

(One-hundred and twenty thousand Córdobas) plus a certificate of recognition.

Winner of the third prize will get

C$100,000.00

(One hundred thousand Córdobas) plus a certificate of recognition.

The monetary awards are subjected to a final withholding of fifteen percent (15%) concerning the income tax rate, as set out in the so-called Tax Concertation Law. Special mentions may be awarded. If that is the case, participants will receive a certificate of participation. All winning studies will become property of CBN.

Registration and upload of required documents must be carried out through CBN's website, advertisement section: www.bcn.gob.ni as of July 3rd, 2023 until 16:00 hrs. Nicaragua time zone (UTC-6) of August 31st, 2023.

For further information, please write to: certamenpremioeconomia@bcn.gob.ni